

The Crime and Corruption Commission

The Crime and Corruption Commission (CCC) is committed to making Queensland's communities safer from drugs and organised crime, and to keeping police and public servants honest and fair. To do that:

- We work with police to find and arrest the drug traffickers who take advantage of your communities.
- We work with councils and government departments to make sure they act for the good of the community.

Most importantly, we listen to you.

You can tell us if a police officer has done the wrong thing. You can tell us if you think there's something not right with your council or a government service.

The things that most people tell us about are:

- corruption and favouritism (conflicts of interest)
- stealing government money or assets
- assault
- misusing personal information.

Our job is to listen to what you tell us and find out what really happened.

Although we are based in Brisbane, we work for all Queenslanders, wherever they live. When you make a serious complaint, you can talk directly to someone from the CCC.

Together we can make Queensland a better place to live.
